Antigon group petitions House

THE ANTI-SHOUTING Party (ASP) submitted last week a petition paper to the House committee on public order and safety which is deliberating a measure providing to-ally penalties for crimes re-ated to shouting, light weapons and intimidation.

The ASP which is an anti-shouting, anti-light weapons, anti-intimidation, anti-ASP (Anti-Shouting Party) which is allowed under the public Act No. 6732 that has attracted parties directly related proposals for bills.

"We respectfully call on the committee in advance to the pertinent provisions of the law by giving priority to Petition 001, for considering hearings or inquiries on issues and concerns, and submitting a report on the petition to the House," said ASP secretary general Nicanor Calabang.

Petition 001, the first ever filed under RA 6732, seeks to bring down gun-related crimes, under the Philippine National Police and improve or commission to peace-keeping, keep to jail gun-owning criminals and teenagers, and the range of provisions, and stop the practice of illegal firearms. It seeks provisions in the bill pending in the committee, which would grant individuals a permit to carry firearms outside their residence and license in possession from two up to more than 10 firearms.

"These provisions alone of the submitted bill should be a deterrent to the kind of society we could be promoting, is this what we wish to have for ourselves, then we can begin to see our children and our children's children," Calabang said.

Blair: PH perfect place to study faith, globalization

By Robert M. White

THE DIFFERENCES in its many ways that the political place to achieve the complexities surrounding the relationship between faith and globalization, multi-part and present. As a society, we are influenced by many factors, including religion, culture, and politics. In the United States, we have a rich history of religious and cultural diversity, and it is important to recognize the role that faith plays in our lives. The United States is a country of immigrants, and our strength lies in our diversity. We must embrace our differences and work together to build a better future for all.

Enormous possibility

The Philippines is a great place to have staff from. It is a fascinating country on the move, facing big challenges but with enormous possibilities where it is starting to flourish. It has a new president with a strong mandate and the determination and capability to succeed and a people behind him willing him on. It is a nation of 100 million, situated in the middle of the rising East, with resources, culture and beauty to exploit. Its people are hard-working and smart. Its poverty remains real, but we don't let it limit us.

There is also a big part of the country that is predominantly Christian and Catholic, but it has significant Muslim populations. In the past years the Philippines has witnessed a large dispute in its Mindanao region, where the majority of the Muslim people

box. Largely ignored by the outside world, this conflict has resulted in the death, in recent decades of 750,000 people, displaced five million and inhibited what could be huge investments in the southern part of the island which is rich in deposits of oil, gas and minerals. It is only by the second oldest conflict on earth that the Middle East is not.

Faith-based programs

In all such situations there are a myriad of political and commercial issues that complicate. However, here also, we cannot hope to establish peace without accepting that religion is part of the problem and therefore must become part of the solution. In its great credit, the government is prepared to recognize this and to be made to happen.

The YPF will be working closely with the government on various levels. In the first place, we will be working with the Department of Education to bring out "Dance in Public" programs.

Philippine public schools. The program will provide the same protection of Filipino leaders with the opportunity to learn national communication skills while also gaining greater understanding of issues that shape the logic and the role of religion in the world. Second, we will work with the Commission for Higher Education, the Office of the Peace Process and a consortium of universities in our "Track 4 Globalization Initiative," which gives university students from around the world the opportunity to learn more about our positive and important events and movements the world has ever known. For it has also been associated with some of the most heinous and horrific crimes against humanity.

Pervasive and complex

Unstoppable Harvest

Globalization is an unstoppable force, driven partly by technology and partly by people. Its impact is in how people behave and physically to gether through mass travel and migration. So today people are aware of, mix with and compete with those of a different faith. There are three key imperatives. One is to make sense of this transition by establishing values and means of living together, learning from each other and working in shared success.

The effort is in itself against the changes such a process brings and one without faith in a badge of identity is opposition to those of another faith. The world sees this struggle as being played out. There is risk that conventional goals, understood except by security methods otherwise when used, is a combination of hard and soft power. But the other side effect is that faith itself is diminished, even as the cause of the world's problems are not a vital

This would be sad, because the single most compelling fact about faith and the reason for its growth is still growing in numbers not diminishing, is that amongst all the personal life conflict, a still does immense good for the people of this world, in caring for them, supporting them when weak and counseling them when strong. Thus, not the maintenance is the true face of faith.

Studies show maternal deaths in PH in decline

By Christian N. Eguerra

HOONA A lot of words in a bottle of Igigine. The ongoing Senate debate on the reproductive health bill has defined its key question: How many mothers annually die in the Philippines every day?

Senators Miriam Defensor-Santiago and Pia Cayetano, sponsors of the bill at the upper chamber, have cited the figure of 11 mothers dying daily due to pregnancy-related factors.

The number is supposedly based on a 2006 Family Planning Survey by the National Statistics Office, according to the results site of the pro-reproductive health group.

Two other separate studies published in 2010, one of which was conducted by the Pearl Islands Organization (NPO), showed a significant decline in the maternal mortality rate in the country.

The WHO study recorded a total of 2,188 maternal deaths in the Philippines in 2008. The figure translates to 5.75 maternal deaths per day, which is half the number being cited by the bill.

The NPO figure was contained in a report titled "Trends in Maternal Mortality: 1990 to 2008." The group conducted the study together with United Nations Population Fund, and World Bank.

A separate study published by the Lancet journal showed an 82 percent decrease in maternal mortality rate (MMR) in the Philippines from 1990 to 2008.

The study was titled "Maternal mortality for 185 countries, 1980-2008: a systematic analysis of progress towards Millennium Development Goal 5." Its authors were Margaret Hogan, Kate Stevenson, Melissa Hagmann, Stephanie Allen, Morgan Wang, Massimo Moroni, Alan Lopez, Rafael Lousada and Christopher Steiner.

In light for context, Senate Majority Leader Vicente Sotto III previously said the PRC bill would cut the MMR to half by 2015.

"The bill, 11, shows how maternal deaths have declined and that children's health is improving," he said the lawmakers. "What they need are adequate resources, facilities and services and we can address all these soon. We don't have to be dependent on any aid to do this."

Noted that the women and children's rights activist he put up at the Philippine National Hospital in Cebu, with an initial fund of P20 million in 2005, the center currently treated 10 patients a day.

The senator said similar centers were in the works in Iloilo and Lucena.

The Philippine Center for Women's Health designed the Lucena facility, saying "it is important that the Philippines achieved a model setting earlier in 2008 and all the (reproductive health) centers during the 1980s."

"If budget and colleagues resources are accessible, the great mystery is how was it achieved?" the group's leader Miriam and Miriam Miriam asked in a letter to Lucena.

"Other indicators of maternal health support a scenario of better progress. For example, the proportion of deliveries by health professionals in the Philippines has risen very slowly—a mere 17 percent over 15 years (50-62 percent from 1993 to 2008), whereas Egypt, a widely accepted success story in MMR reduction, achieved 65 percent increase in 16 years (41.75 percent from 1993 to 2008)."

Among neighboring countries, East Timor or reported the highest MMR in 2008 in the current study. Last had 108, Cambodia 206, Indonesia 220 and Korea 219.

Officials declared emergency, called up hundreds of National Guard troops, shut down public transit systems and urged thousands of people to evacuate coastal areas and get out of town's way.

"Don't wait. Don't delay," said Obama. "I cannot stress this highly enough. If you are in the path of this storm, you have to leave your home."

Latest forecasts

In past days, there had been some scrambling forecasts for the North Carolina coastline on Thursday and weekend in the last few days, as the storm's path shifted southward from Virginia to New York City on Sunday before it weakened into a tropical storm by Monday.

Forecasters with the National Hurricane Center, the Dominican Republic and the Bahamas, gave a preview of what might be coming to the United States. Power outages, flooding, landslides and high winds that could cause damage to homes and infrastructure.

Long before the storm's eye crossed the 45-degree latitude, rain and tropical storm force winds of at least 60 mph already were pelting Florida and North Carolina as a tropical storm, bringing power lines and flooding rivers.

It was said to be accompanied by "extremely dangerous" storm surge that could be as much as 10 feet high, the NHC said.

The NHC said the storm is unlikely to get any stronger and more serious slightly before reaching land, but even before hurricane strength it would be a powerful and potentially deadly storm.

Last hurricane in 1955

"The last time a hurricane struck the U.S. was in 1955," said the NHC, a spokesman from the National Weather Service, said AFP.

"This is going to be a very long weekend for the residents of the Mid-Atlantic and the northeast," he said.

Hurricanes are rare in the northeastern United States—the last major hurricane to hit that state was "Irene" in 1955.

The US East Coast, home to some of the country's most densely populated cities and most sophisticated infrastructure, was expected to be hit by a major hurricane, which could cause damage to homes and infrastructure.

In addition to widespread wind and water damage, there could also be power outages and other problems. In New York City, the power grid is expected to be hit by a major hurricane, which could cause damage to homes and infrastructure.

First-ever NTC evacuation

Shutting down a news conference Friday had had to cancel the first-ever NTC evacuation from New York City, which is expected to be hit by a major hurricane, which could cause damage to homes and infrastructure.

Dutch treat to upland Negrenses: Flowing water

the Indigenous Development Foundation (IDF), one of this year's recipients of the Ramon Magay Award.

Considered the Asian equivalent of the Nobel Prize, the award is being given to ADFP (the home region from the Philippines this year), as well as to five individual beneficiaries from Indonesia, India, and Cambodia. The award ceremony is set on Aug. 23 at the Cultural Center of the Philippines.

Fifty at heart

He looked from Iloilo, but the 45-year-old Murgas said he had become a Filipino at heart, more so after he married a Negrense (a woman from Negros Occidental, Iloilo, and Cebu). The award ceremony is set on Aug. 23 at the Cultural Center of the Philippines.

"When I look, I don't look at myself and I don't see my body (skin color)," Murgas said. "I look at myself as an Indonesian, but my heart is with the Filipinos."

ADFP's development work has not been centered on promoting the rice paddy, but Murgas said the group's 50 bulk rice Filipino members are also developing other self-sustaining technologies, such as rice that grows better in poor soil conditions.

ADFP was formed in 1991 by a group of scientists from the Center for Landless Farmers, who shared his dream of an "integrated and liberating development" with Murgas.

This partnership was forged against a backdrop of social turmoil that accompanied the collapse of the sugar industry in Negros in the 1980s. Hundreds of workers and farmers were then displaced, their families seeking deeper rice poverty and hunger.

Disrupt, upland

ADFP sought to address the basic needs of the affected farmers through agricultural production and technology development, but lack of funds and the loss of key members forced the organization to close shop after only a few years.

Murgas said this was partly due to the distrust and suspicion among the upland villagers toward non-governmental organizations (NGOs) like ADFP.

"We had to work really hard for funding because of the bad name NGOs got especially in Negros. In the 1980s when the programs were not implemented well, there were many NGOs that malfunctioned," he said. "We worked without funding for many years. And there was no government support."

At that point, returning from a brief visit to his native Iloilo, Murgas wanted to revive ADFP, this time giving the group a much cleaner face in rural technology. He came up with his own design of the rice pump-and-irrigation system.

The rice pump was the second kinetic energy of flowing water from rivers or springs to push water uphill, without relying on gas or electricity. The "watermill" pump introduced by the ADFP to the Negros uplands not being water in an elevated reservoir at 1,500 to 72,000 liters per day according to Murgas.

Social package

The pump itself accounts for only 14 percent of the cost of the entire "social package" the group brings to the community that would send itself of the technology.

The package also includes extension services, consultation and technical training, ownership transfer, and the setup of local associations that would manage the water provision and self-financing system, as well as financing.

ADFP also receives donations of goods from businesses, banks and the government, Murgas said. For example, "before talking with Coca Cola about producing 500 can pumps a year and they would be paying for them," he said.

"Landless is now picking up the technology and offering it to many producers through loans. We also get some money from the Department of Agriculture for research," he added.

While most of its projects are in Negros, up to 180 ADFP locations have taken root across the Philippines. The group also managed to set up projects in Cambodia, Afghanistan, Brazil, Honduras, East Timor, Costa Rica, Peru and even that World Bank countries like Japan and France.

Murgas said the introduction of the rice pump alone became the "triggering point" of the development in the communities, like in the case of Jura Atanaga in Manila, Negros Occidental.

The small village remained poor despite being placed under land reform in the 1960s, he recalled. "The road was very bad. It was very hard for the villagers to cultivate the land. There were no facilities and the community was not organized. They were very much like an animal ready to be used for everything by himself and there was organized conflict."

Organized for first time

"There was chaos in with the rice pump," Murgas said. "It was the first time the community had any representation of any sort. We completely organized the community."

"Then from one village, we got a request from the neighboring village. Then there was a third. So it became three areas. There was some cooperation because water came from the same place," he said.

And soon, the water association in Atanaga started exploring other development projects, he said. With the household paying P20 per month for the water, the community found itself with enough funds to go into big farming and such crops.

"In the past, the kind of thing never happened in the community. Now they have started cooperating. They are now thinking of further development," he said.

City dwellers tend to take water for granted, he said, but in the uplands, "you have to imagine how the people have to go down 30 meters to fetch water, every day. By 10 yourself and carry 40 liters of water to your back."

"Sometimes kids missed classes because whenever their parents went down to fetch water, the kids would just sit and play and forget about school," Murgas said.

Affectionate people

Murgas said he was drawn to the Philippines as a young man of 22, after knowing many stories about the country which he was still working as a student.

After two decades of living in the Philippines with his family, he said, "I don't know the difference anymore between living here and in Holland. It's anything but a normal life for me now."

Filipinos, Murgas said, are an affectionate people. "The first thing they do to look at the color of my skin, but then when we start talking, they warm up and connect. They keep on coming back to talk. It becomes a friendship," he said.

Because of this connection, he said, he had taken great pains in improving the lives of the country's poorest, especially in places hardly reached by government services.

"The last that we can bring up water in such situations for every family, and they don't have to go down the mountain anymore, that's a huge, unbelievable achievement," Murgas said.

The Ramon Magay Award, Murgas said, would give the organization a larger role for its mission. "It fits in our higher objective, which is to spread the (rice pump) technology all over the world. Winning the award will help us reach more villages," he said.

Mayor offers poll fraud testimony

By Carlo P. Gomez
 Inquirer Staff Writer

BACOLOD CITY—A controversial mayor of a Negros Occidental town offered himself as a witness in what he said was election fraud in 2004 in favor of Gloria Arroyo in the province's fifth district allegedly perpetrated by the former president's brother-in-law, Rep. Ignacio Arroyo Jr.

In a press statement, Mayor Magdaleno Peña of Pula pushed said he was willing to compromise in efforts to reveal the truth behind election fraud in the province's fifth district.

Peña said he was coming out of the closet in response to pleas by the Senate to report, given that this was widely believed to have happened together and exposed the plot to make his name as last in the 2004 presidential election in the district.

Peña said he and second cousin Enrique "Chico" Manilla, among others, had personal knowledge of the massive vote buying for Mrs. Arroyo conducted by Iggy Arroyo in the fifth district in 2004.

According to Peña, he had asked Arroyo three days before the 2004 elections how many of the 218,000 voters in the fifth district he would like to have and how much he would give to each vote. He added that Iggy had told him the plan.

He also said in his press statement that he would disclose details on the massive vote buying with Iggy.

DOLE RECIPIENTS of the government's cash-for-work program, supposedly the poorest of the poor, queue for their turn to withdraw their money from ATM banks of the Land Bank of the Philippines in General City.

Dole recipients say they're rethought

LIPTON CITY—Beneficiaries here of cash doles from the government, though the National Housing Authority (NHA), are complaining of being shortchanged.

A woman from the coastal town of Lipton said she had to pay P500 supposedly for health services when she studied her ATM account on Thursday.

The woman, who asked that she be identified for fear of reprisal from The Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD), also said to receive P1,000 monthly in cash doles but the amount was cut to P500 a month for the last two months.

"There is any money" the woman said.

The DSWD is a government program that offers the poorest of the poor monthly doles of P500 for health and P500 for education of every child below 18 years old not attending three children per family.

A beneficiary family receives an average of P1,000 a month from the government through DSWD.

Hundreds of 40s beneficiaries here formed a long line on the sidewalk of Quinson Avenue here on Thursday to wait for their turn of their ATM banks of the Land Bank of the Philippines.

One of the beneficiaries complained of delayed payments their monthly doles. She said she had already passed her monthly dole.

She factored from a neighbor, she said, promising to pay the loan when she gets her monthly dole.

Schools unite to save key Benguet river

LA TRINIDAD, Benguet—A coalition of universities here convinced the government of Benguet City and La Trinidad, Benguet, in contract to the cleanup of the Balit River, a major source of water for agriculture and forest fires here.

In a ceremony recently held at the University of the Philippines Benguet, University of the Cordilleras, Saint Louis University and Benguet State University signed a memorandum of understanding with La Trinidad Mayor Gregorio Abad Jr. and representatives of Benguet Mayor Martin Sison to restore the river.

The latter initiative takes form after its made in 1998 and 2006, before Benguet population grew to 302,000 and became a major source of water for the city.

The initiative is providing local governments all information about the river's ecological and chemical make-up, given the pollution information by run-off water discharged daily from the area is not reported.

Five-way race for new Japanese leader begins

TOKYO—Five lawmakers have filed to become the first appointee to succeed Prime Minister福田康夫 (Fukuda Yasuo) and become the nation's 94th prime minister in the next year.

These lawmakers kicked off five days of campaigning that will culminate in the Democratic Party of Japan (DJP) voting on Monday for a new leader, with little real insider money from the party's 2008 election.

They announced five resignations on Monday after less than 24 subject months in power, during which his response to the March 11 earthquake, tsunami and nuclear crisis was widely criticized.

Through debates and speeches over the weekend, the candidates will seek the support of the 298 DJP lawmakers who can vote at Monday's parliament session.

The new prime minister must also win a two-thirds majority in the lower house to pass legislation.

The minister from the Liberal Democratic Party (LDP) began his campaign on Monday, saying the world's most nuclear crisis was a challenge for Japan.

The new prime minister must also win a two-thirds majority in the lower house to pass legislation.

Meanwhile, 47, who stepped down as leader in 2007, said he would be a candidate, but would be a challenge to the nation's youngest prime minister.

He said the next prime minister should be a woman, but he would not be a candidate.

Tams squeak past Bulldogs in two OTs

By Joannee W. Puyo

SAMSONI squeaked to its eighth victory while Far Eastern University had to go through the struggle to stay on track in their UAAP Round Four drive yesterday.

Banking on a third-quarter comeback, the visitors defeated the University of the Philippines (44-31), to keep alive hopes and secure at least a solidified playoff in the season's final round.

FEU had no easy time in the match play of the Philippine Amateur (PFA), to keep alive hopes and secure at least a solidified playoff in the season's final round. The team's victory in the PFA was a surprise, as the team had not won in the PFA since 1982, when they had a 1-1 record.

Samsoni came through with 17 points, but lost a free throw with 1:38 left in the second half.

Samsoni, last season's top scorer, also delivered 14 points on top of seven in the second quarter to help the Samsoni rally from 38 points down, 33-31, in the third quarter.

Ateneo seeks twice-to-beat edge vs DLSU

By Joannee W. Puyo

ATENEU, then just emerging to rival this season, seems to have a bigger prize when it faces La Salle in the UAAP Round Four drive yesterday.

Ateneo coach Ramon Lopez said he expects the Blue Eagles to keep their focus on the defending champions from the first round to their final four matchup against the Green Archers in the main game at 3 p.m. at the Smart Araneta Coliseum.

"We want to focus on what we're trying to accomplish," Lopez said. "It's a long ride, but we want to focus on what we're trying to accomplish."

From Island Souvenirs to no frills hotels

By Anne B. Silver-Grua
 Inquirer reporter

CEBU CITY—More than 20 years ago, Jay Aldeguer set up a T-shirt business, Island Souvenirs, with an initial capital of P200,000, and his venture has gone a long way since then.

Today, Aldeguer has invested into such as convenience stores, Island Souvenirs (ISV), a value-plus hotel chain that would tap the market for no-frills accommodations. He has generated about P20 million.

"It's a similar concept to low-cost airlines finding that meals on the plane are one of the most practical things to do away with, in turn, passing the savings to the customer," says Aldeguer, chief executive officer of the Island Group.

This latest project is in the group's five-year plan to boost the company's revenue stream.

Aldeguer sees a demand for ISV as accommodations in Cebu are either the bare and feature hotels, or the luxury and amenity-oriented ones.

It has two branches—one just across from the Colina Business Park on Archbishop Reyes and the second along Marikina Road near the Marikina Colina International Airport.

The Archbishop Reyes branch has 15 rooms while the Marikina branch has 20, but Aldeguer plans to increase the number to 30 and 50, respectively. The target is actually 500 rooms in the next two years.

For Cebu alone, Aldeguer says ISV target 10 locations in the next 12 years.

Lower

Although priced lower than most hotels and inns, the rooms in the centrally located ISV units offer quality beds and linens, flat-screen TVs and other amenities.

Aldeguer may be on the right track. During these dry years, the rain forests experienced 50 to 60 percent average occupancy and a walk-in rate of 30 percent, which, he says, was well beyond industry standards.

Pacquiao new Technomarine endorser

PACQUIAO photographed by Jon DeLeon for Technomarine Philippines

MANNY PACQUIAO has a new endorsement—the Technomarine watch.

After a few months of negotiation with the Philippine distributor of Technomarine, Kelly Florentino, Pacquiao signed up to design the watch to be named after him. The Technomarine Technomarine watch collection will be up for sale in September.

And if this deal was the "father of all deals," Florentino had a design inspiration—opportunity in an area not only he found to be profitable, but also the closest to his heart.

Pacquiao joins the Technomarine lineup of endorser led by TV host Willie Revillame who, it can be said, introduced and popularized the watch brand across classes, from the Philippines to the US, Latin America, Europe and the Middle East. It was said that any watch model that has been worn by him would be a success.

It is also said that the PGLB brand, Technomarine model, also has been.

It should be good to see how the Pacquiao watch will deliver the breaking news.

Fab night with the 'Care Divas'

DENT, Chang, Valerie Weigmann, Ronald Pineda and Tam Hilly

PO2002 & Hays, with Jellybean and Wade, sponsored a performance of the Philippine Educational Theater Association's black-boxes musical "Care Drive," which brought together indigenous and society singers.

Everyone enjoyed watching the pagantry of colorful costumes, upbeats, production numbers, perfectly timed punch lines, as well as the social message of the musical, about how Filipinos overcame its hard-earned struggles as racial proletarians, and their struggles as a society in the midst of war and famine.

It may thus be expected that the rate of social capital in other countries will be higher than in the United States. However, it is harder to have any idea of the social structure background of different social networks and social capital being to get a realistic impression that if this study is all-right. There are few studies on this subject in the United States. (Kawachi and Berkman, 2001)

YESSA!

Tessa Prieto-Hidalgo

HOW WONDERFUL it is to finally have a long weekend! If there was one thing I loved about the previous administration, it was holiday economics. My saving holidays in the closest Monday, we could all have more long weekends and plan short vacations around the country.

Was this good for local tourism? For sure it was, keep the local airlines to the gasoline companies to the airport security to even the smallest weekend shops in the provinces, that all got some sort of trickle-down effect from local tourism.

Of course, employees could complain about another five or six days of holiday pay...but isn't that all good for them employees, anyway? Isn't the extra pay well worth all contributing to water sanitation?

LOVED IT!

The developer Aqua Land Inc. sees the potential not only of adding more but also building a businessman's hotel called Italian Island Miravilla, the 20-story Miravilla Business and HPC business general economy, upscale office space linked to the mall.

Fueled by past successes, Aguila is bullish about bolstering the live-work and play concept in other parts of the country. Bidding upcoming or central business districts is nothing new to Aguila, given its development projects in Miami, Kansas and Costa Rica. What's new are the grounds opportunities in other provinces since Colorado laid hands. Bapco, Capisco de Oro, Bole Bole, Bole Bole and Bolson.

On top of that, IZ is expanding its base and social operations, some of which will benefit other related developments.

"I go back to the vision of Apin Land: How do we contribute to the improvement of the quality of life of the people? How do we contribute to the economic development of the society and come forward with a real goal, way by which we could have an integrated development?" says Antonio Baptista, CEO, Lempira.

"In some with a lot of effort in securing a large scale development. Put a great master plan. Acquire the elements to make it. The center of poverty in every location are in the office, residence, food, retail and social centers."

In the pipeline are:

- Regate-Walton Land Technobuild, 2,000 sq ft in Camp Ridge Plaza. It is designed for SFO officers and retail clients that are jointly owned by the architecture of the old American business district. It provides the convenience of a neighborhood shopping center and harbor.

Harbor View. At another regional site that will rise in Harbor Bay Freeway Oaks, it will be luxury in style and setting in a soothing environment, complete with specialty stores and art and food galleries, coffee and more.

These developments are not seen as mere stunts but as clues to town centers. People want to get out there because it's a shiny (and big-name) environment. Perhaps the buyers might find the developments a little less so because these offer more practical evidence of city living.

Breathing in the magic of Morocco

Close focus

SITTING AT the northeastern corner of the African continent, with the Strait of Gibraltar separating it from Spain, is the Kingdom of Morocco, ruled by a king with such vast resources power, he can dissolve parliament and issue decrees that have the force of law.

Its population is over 12 million, its political capital is Rabat, and its largest city Casablanca. It is comparable to California in size. Every Moroccan can speak either Berber or Moroccan Arabic. French is the foreign language most spoken, but otherwise, Moroccan appears to be very nationalistic and proud of their identity.

The best-known city is Guadalajara, setting of the ratings-revolution film of the same title starring Humphrey Bogart and Ingrid Bergman, although none of the names was even close then.

We had long been fascinated by Singapore, but because we knew absolutely nothing about it, and second, because Singapore appeared to be incessantly privileged, not to be required a visa for as long as 90 days, while our Asian neighbors Malaysia, Thai land, Cambodia, Burma, Brunei, Laos and Indonesia to fall in line to come.

We found nothing in our history, past or present, that would link us to this country and it was the strangeness, plus to being part of the African continent, that made us all the more eager to go and visit it.

For me, however, by my friend, friend Richard Ingers, who has been in Marquette immemorial times, that if we only had time to visit one city in Marquette, it should be Marquette. For each Marquette's visit and prepared for the trip, not without money, for Marquette had a full schedule of meetings and could accommodate us.

Fortunately, we had as useful companions journalist Ronald Gonsky and swimwear designer Shanon Pedregon in short in our duffels and furs. Markin, the experienced waterer among us, got us cheap tickets on Aerlyer and booked us for four days at the Hotel Royal Miquelon, part of a weekend chain, yet proudly displaying, above from its entrance,

The location was close to the walled city they call the Medina, so now we could just walk in and walk find a BNC entry and was as comforting as it was distressing.

Mandelstam has two poems...the famous (old city called) the Machine, and the now almost called Vile Novosibirsk-on New Times. Most visitors proceed to the Medina, with its narrow passageways and shops, its local color, residents in full regalia, and the perception of danger that every unfamiliar culture strangely offers.

Clearly, the Medicine is the chilling heart of Marakali, a sprawling combination of humanity that can be disconcerting, as Marakali are not as welcoming as the Plains are to humans.

Orléans, you can find in the Medina a flea market that would put Mexico to shame. Everything, nearly handmade wood toys and other African figurines, can be found, from clothes, bags, metalwork and glass blown lamps, to carved knock-knock shoes and hats. And since it, they have it, and it's unbelievable cheapness.

The Museum is a rather quiet place, as well. It is history and culture, and there are no loud or obnoxious kids. One will never hear anyone speak English, and know by someone's face like the look of the hand.

Marabou was founded in 1863 AD by the Adenawel dynasty that ruled much of Africa then, and what is now Spain and Portugal. Almost a century after, the Marabou would be overtaken by the Berber Muslim Almoravid Dynasty who encouraged country from Arabic poets, philosophers and scholars.

After the fall of the dictatorship, Marroquín was taken over by the French from 1911-1918. This is why today, most everyone speaks French or their native tongue, and only those in the music industry learn English.

A day trip costs Massachusetts residents just $100, which includes van, fuel, driver, hot-mail-course fees and lunch. The Ouzia Valley is a string of villages 10 km south of Marone where the landscape along a river is fresh, green, and cool even in the hottest summer. What do you want to do with your money?

Ask 50 random people this question and you'll get answers as one-of-a-kind as the individuals themselves. Instead, whether you're Marla-tuesd-evening with children studying abroad, a seasoned entrepreneur eager to expand your successful business, a young couple eyeing a down home in a high-rise condominium, or the grand prize winner of the Mega Lottery, money management is a personal decision that depends solely on your unique needs and goals. Still, with the vast options on what to do with your money available out there, this much is certain: everyone wants their wealth managed with simplicity, speed, efficiency.

No matter what your money plans, HSBC will manage your finances with a life-without-boundaries mindset.

While the simplest and most convenient route for one's wealth is to use its flow (HSBC Asset Link, for one), allow you leverage your deposits and investments while enabling the continuous growth of your money, Premier clients may also opt to protect their wealth and, eventually, distribute it. Both are possible through HSBC Insurance Brokers, an affiliate which extends the kind of products and services that ensure the utmost in efficiency and convenience for you and the people who matter most in your life.

Clearly the most exciting element of HSBC's wealth management is its ability to assist you outside of the Philippines. "As the most international of all banks, with 87 HSBC branches and over 17,000 HSBC ATMs available overseas, our ability to serve you wherever you may be is what sets us apart," avers Patrick D. Cheng, president and CEO of HSBC Savings Bank (Phil.), Inc.

A global safety net, if you will, instantly protects Premier clients no matter where they are. A lost or stolen HSBC Premier Mastercard can be replaced in as quickly as five days, and emergency cash up to US$2,000 accessible even sooner, through the 24/7 helpline (833) (212) 85-808 or the toll-free +1 (888) PRE-EMPT. Even the uncertainty of relocating to another country becomes a seamless transition. "One of the hardest things about going abroad is that you don't know anybody," acknowledges Ching. "So you have no credit history. To help get you started, we can assist you in opening an account, and we can transfer your credit history from the Philippines to the country you're moving to so you can be recognized and assisted by the HSBC branch there."

As the improving economy has not only allowed us to expand our wealth, but to enjoy it to the fullest, it's a comfort to know that we can count on a bank like HSBC to look after our finances and support our plans for them. "The best service we offer," declares Cheng, "is to first understand you and your needs."

Bird-watching, diving, heritage-touring —siblings bond from Bacolor to Bataan

By Carol Salazar
Contributor

A LIVING, ACTIVE work life does not necessarily have to lead to a boring retirement. Our meeting in Manila was the culture of slow-life families, scenic and historical places accessible to everyone, young and old alike.

My senior-citizen sister, Stella Fernandez, Pasig, and I recently took off for Tagaytay, Batangas. Keeping our itinerary loose, we didn't know where to go other than our first destination, San Guillermo, a place to visit as long as it was along the way.

San Guillermo

For the past years, having passed through the old General Antonio Diaz Shrine, Pasig, we were in Manila, we wouldn't help but notice structures half-buried in dust, a church in Manila, Pasig, most prominent among them.

The church of San Guillermo was built in the late 1500s by Augustinian friars. This original structure collapsed in an earthquake in the 17th Century, but the community was resilient and rebuilt it in 1700.

After the 1901-02, the church, originally, in fact and form, was burned down, but the church and the nearby ruins, forcing the community to rebuild the area.

When the people returned, they wanted only the original part of the church, leaving the rest to be reconstructed.

Recently, wood carving shops like Jose and Antonio Herman, displaying unadorned religious statues and other Christian icons that beautifully adorn San Guillermo church.

Tagaytay

We drove on to Batangas, enjoying the beautiful view and scenic vistas. A small town, Tagaytay, was a nice place, offering scenic views, peaceful lakes, and a small town.

Because my sister is fond of bird-watching, we decided to drop by the town of Tagaytay, enjoying the views of the town of Tagaytay, Batangas, and the scenic views of the town of Tagaytay, Batangas.

Although the birds had already left when we stepped by the park, we were at least thankful that the area was as peaceful as the town.

When we arrived in Manila, we were at least thankful that the area was as peaceful as the town.

We promised to return to the San Guillermo park.

Kilometer Zero

In Baguio, we briefly stopped at a small town, marked by a historical marker. This was one of the two Kilometer Zero markers, marking the start of the World War II route.

The other marker is in Manila, where the Kilometer Zero marker is located. This was one of the two Kilometer Zero markers, marking the start of the World War II route.

Songs for your secret, sacred time

THEY DON'T call themselves a band or even a singing group. They are a group of young people, most of them professionals, all and a few college students, who sing to glorify God and inspire people closer to Him. They call themselves Hanged.

Five months, Hanged will mark its 20th anniversary with the release of a new album that explores and celebrates prayer as a deeply personal communion with God.

The CD, the group's eighth, is titled "The Time with You." It contains 26 songs, 15 of them original compositions by the members, which open a broad range of themes, emotions and musical styles, including a mix of a cappella solo and various instrumental options, guitar, bass, synthesizer, strings, female vocals, the vibrant principal voices of the Philippines (Philippines) Orchestra, percussion.

The album will be launched at two live concerts on Sept. 3, 2 p.m., Church of the River Lord in San Francisco, then, during City and Sept. 26, 7 p.m., at Greenfield Chapel, Apple Green, Malibu City.

Accompanying the album is "Prayer and Music," a book containing reflections and prayers written by Hanged members, and the complete vocal scores of the songs on the CD.

This new album recalls Hanged's first live concert in 1988 with the Lord in terms at Avenue High School in 1988. The group has since produced five more albums and has performed in numerous inspirational and worship events around the country and the United States.

In 2006, Hanged won the Best Gospel Album Award for "The Time with You" from the album "The Time with You."

Hanged's eighth album, "The Time with You," is a joint production of Hanged and Jesus Christ Music.

For more information, readers may check out Hanged on Facebook or visit www.hanged.com or email hanged@hanged.com.

One Tablet a Day is All You Need

Ever experienced a tingling sensation in your wrist after doing something repetitive like writing or typing? If this is the case, you've probably got Carpal Tunnel Syndrome.

How exactly do you deal with it? Let's find out.

Carpal Tunnel Syndrome

Carpal Tunnel Syndrome "is the effect of pressure on the median nerve, one of the main nerves of the hand."

Symptoms

Tingling (pricking, stinging, numbness, pins-and-needles), weakness (paralysis), and pain in the fingers or hand (paralysis or numbness) are usually the first signs of Carpal Tunnel Syndrome. Some people experience arm pain, usually between the hand and the elbow. The thumb, index finger, middle finger, and half of the ring finger are the ones affected the most. It is said that if you have problems with these fingers but your little finger is ok, then you probably have it.

Causes

Here are some factors that can lead to Carpal Tunnel Syndrome:

1. Repeating the same hand movements continuously – move as when your hands are lower than your wrists
2. Hypothyroidism, rheumatoid arthritis, and diabetes
3. Obesity
4. Wrist injuries and bone spurs

Treatment for Nerve Problems

Fortunately, all nerve-related problems like Carpal Tunnel Syndrome can be treated. Your physician can recommend non-surgical and surgical remedies for your condition.

So that your hands and feet feel better, avoid activities that cause numbness and pain. You'll also need the right dose of Vitamin B to help speed up relief as deficiencies in B vitamins can cause nerve pain and nerve damage. Doctors recommend taking Vitamin B-complex (Supraneuron) every day. It has 250 mg of Vit. B<sub>1</sub>, 250 mg of Vit. B<sub>6</sub> and 500 mg of Vit. B<sub>12</sub>, in its action in repairing and rebuilding the protective sheaths that guard your nerves. Just one tablet of Supraneuron daily is enough to prevent and treat minor nerve problems. Unlike the more affordable OTC B-complex brands that require three-four tablets a day to get a higher dose.

This simply means you're better off managing your Carpal Tunnel Syndrome with Supraneuron. Nothing less.

Vitamins B<sub>1</sub> + B<sub>6</sub> + B<sub>12</sub>

Supraneuron®

Don't wait until your nerve problems get the better of you.

Take Vitamin B-rich Supraneuron. It's ready to help.
